English literature and technology, a marriage made in heaven?

New scholastic programmes which have 'revolutionised' the approach to literature in Italy have led to a major review and revision of suitable teaching materials, as well as the need for additional focus on students' linguistic competences, CLIL and certifications. Moreover, with the increasing presence and influence of technology in our lives, teachers are constantly searching for ways in which to focus their students' attention and exploit their digital know-how. Today's seminar aims therefore to support teachers in the challenge to attract and motivate these students in the light of the new programmes and prepare them to face and cope with the current demands of the syllabus.

15.30 Registration of Participants:

16.00 First session:

- * Suggestions on linking historical, geographical and cultural themes using the basic instruments offered by most IWB software packages
- * Using ready-made, easy-to-use digital materials to enhance a traditional literature lesson

17.00 Coffee break

17.30 Second session:

- * Try this at home – encouraging students to approach learning collaboratively through a series of problem solving scenarios to develop their language competences
- * Useful internet sites for practising skills and further researching the themes presented

18.30 End of Session / Certificates of Attendance
